When i click Download, I tried downloading the "formit.zip" file but its extension says it is a "Rar File" and not a "zip File". A: First you will need to get you the xforce.exe keygen from here: An instruction on how to run the xforce tool can be found here: And here is a detailed list of the functions of the xforce tool In summary, run xforce.exe from a folder which you have stored the keygen file and the autocad installer. To run, just double click on the exe. The "traditional" way of installing the xforce tool will not work because the autocad installer and the xforce tool are separated. Conventional semiconductor fabrication processes, such as but not limited to DRAM fabrication processes, include steps to form conductive vias through one or more dielectric layers to various structures and layers formed on underlying portions of the wafer. The structures and layers may include, for example, circuitry, vias, contact plugs, other interconnect structures, etc. An important aspect of forming conductive vias is the structural integrity of the various layers and structures to which the vias are to be connected. FIG. 1 illustrates one conventional semiconductor structure 100 having conductive vias 110 formed therein. Conventional semiconductor structure 100 includes a substrate 101, an insulator 102, conductive via 110 and a conductive plug 130. Substrate 101 may be a semiconductor wafer, for example, or a substrate having various conductive structures formed therein, such as wires, metal interconnections, etc. Insulator 102 is an oxide, a nitride or other insulator. Conductive plug 130 is a conductive structure formed on, for example, substrate 101, which provides a conductive connection for conductive via 110. Conductive via 110 passes through insulator 102 to provide a conductive connection for conductive plug 130. Conductive via 110 may have a silicon or other conductive material formed thereon, 50b96ab0b6
